

Allowing cell phone usage in flight just opens another venue for terrorist activity. They can communicate with their counterparts legally and the repercussions could be another airline disaster. What's to stop them from calling each other on the plane and taking control?